About Vice-Presidents.

Previous to the accession of General Arthur to the Presidency, three Vice-Presidents had reached that office in consequence of the death of the President. In the previous campaigns, the second place on the ticket had been accorded them to conciliate the minority in the nominating convention. Neither of these Vice-Presidents enjoyed confidential relations with the President, and when suddenly called to be his successor, it was felt that there would be something more than a mere nominal change in the Administration. It was nevertheless believed that the cardinal policy of the party would be maintained.

General Harrison survived his inauguration only a month. It was supposed that Mr. Tyler would carry into effect the financial doctrines which had so signally triumphed in 1840. But, after four months of vacillation, he discarded them, and dismissed, with a single exception, the Harrison Cabinet, selecting his advisers and making his chief appointments from the minority faction which had been defeated in the nominating convention of the previous year. He ultimately became the open opponent of the Whig party, and threw the whole weight of his administration against the election of Mr. Clay as his successor.

After being President a year and four months, General Taylor died, in the midst of the violent struggle over the slavery compromise measures of 1850. Mr. Fillmore, who had opposed the nomination of General Taylor, immediately changed the whole Cabinet, ignored the liberal policy of his predecessor on the slavery question, turned his back on Free Soil Whigs of the type of Wm. H. Seward, and led the party so near to the gates of death that it was only left to General Scott, in the next Presidential contest, to open the portals and allow it to be consigned to the tomb which had just received its great founders, Daniel Webster and Henry Clay.

The course pursued by Andrew Johnson on the death of Mr. Lincoln is fresh in the public recollection. Commencing with the most vehement denunciation of the rebels, he changed his position, step by step, until he was found, in the last eighteen months of his administration, in undisguised hostility to the men and the measures that had prevailed when Mr. Lincoln was elected to the Presidency the second time.

The lessons taught by these facts are especially suggestive, because neither of these three accidental Presidents began his administration with the purpose of antagonizing the party which elected him to the Vice-Presidency. They each took the first step in that direction when they repudiated the settled policy of the party on some cardinal question, and played into the hands of that branch of it which had been proved to be the minority in the country and in the convention for nominating the President.

Too warm.—Mr. Robert Burdette visited a nail factory, and relates an impression: "I watched the nails," he says, "as they fell from the ponderous machine, fast as rain drops. Strange feelings rushed into my mind like a torrent. I stooped and picked up a brand new nail as a memento of my visit. Then I laid it down again—sadly, but not slowly. I had an 'impression' that a new nail nail, like a new laid egg, is warm, and that it is far more perceptible in the case of the nail. It may not be so in every instance. I presume there may be some nails laid cold. But the one I picked up was not cold and I did not investigate any further."

A story is told of J. Gould dropping into a strange restaurant, and not finding himself in possession of enough ready cash to pay for it, greatly, of course, to his surprise and chagrin. He finally attempted to find relief from his embarrassing position by telling the proprietor his name; but that individual considered this "too thin," and threatened him with arrest for false pretences. He was finally about to show a check drawn to his order for a million, more or less, when a gentleman came in who knew him, and relieved him from his embarrassment by loaning $5.—[Christian Union.]

A Significant Story.

A wealthy banker in one of our large cities, who is noted for his large subscriptions to charities, and for his kindly habits of private benevolence, was called on by his pastor, one evening, and asked to go with him to the help of a man who had attempted suicide.

They found the man in a wretched house, in an alley, not far from the banker's dwelling. The front room was a cobbler's shop; behind it, on a miserable bed, in the kitchen, lay the poor shoemaker with a gasping sigh in his throat, while his wife and children were gathered about him.

"We have been without food for days," said the woman, when he returned. "It is not my husband's fault. He is a hardworking, sober man. But he could neither get work nor pay for that which he had done. To day he went for the last time to collect a debt due him by a rich family, but the gentleman was not at home. My husband was weak from fasting, and seeing us starving drove him mad. So it ended that way, turning to the fainting, motionless figure on the bed."

The banker having fed and warmed the family, hurried home, opened his desk and took out a file of little bills. All his large debts were promptly met quarterly, but he was apt to be careless about the accounts of milk, bread, etc., because they were so petty.

He found there a bill of Michael Goodlow's for repairing children's shoes, $10. Michael Goodlow was the suicide. It was the banker's unpaid debt which had brought these people to the verge of the grave, and driven this man to desperation, while, at the very time, the banker had been giving away thousands in charity.

The cobbler recovered, and will never want a friend while the banker lives, nor will a small unpaid bill ever again be found on the banker's table.

No man has a right to be generous until his debts are paid; and the most efficient use of money is not alone in almsgiving, but to pay liberally and promptly the people whom we employ.—[Youth's Companion.]

Quite too utterly utter.—"Walter," said one of our pork merchants to his sixteen-year-old hope, "I don't mind how short you have your coat cut so long as they strike you somewhere below the shoulder blades; neither does it trouble me to see you choking yourself to death in a pair of tight pants; nor am I much concerned in how many scarf pins you sport each day, or how large a bundle you carry to the laundry every twenty-four hours. Though the sight of your mustache in its feeble efforts for life, makes me faint, yet I can bear up even under that, but ever let me catch you wearing your coat chain on the outside of your coat, and you'll go to work in the store before you can say 'quite too utter,' do you hear me?"—[Burlington Hawkeye.]

MURDER TRIALS.—The manner of trying murderers has made the popular impression that it is a juggle to defeat justice. To try if the accused is guilty is not made the chief object, but to try if, being guilty, he can not be acquitted by the machinery of the law, the looseness of the bench, and the feeble minds of jurors. The conduct of the Judges is as if their business was to give the widest latitude to the efforts of lawyers to clear the guilty. So debased is court and bar sentiment that it calls this abuse giving the accused a fair trial. But a fair trial is just the opposite of this; it is to find out and convict the guilty, not to clear him.—[Cincinnati Gazette.]

If we were called upon to designate a name that conveys a meaning more dishonorable than dishonor, more depraved than depravity, more infamous than infamy—a name that, pronounced in heaven, would thrill the celestial hosts with horror; that, uttered on earth, would fill mankind with loathing; that spoken in hell, would cause every devil in the infernal regions to blush with shame—that name would be Stephen G. Burbridge.—[Breckinridge News.]

EMINENT MEN.—It may be observed that no attempt has been made to hunt out of the way or unknown places to find names to endorse fraudulent liquor legislation: Hon. Alexander H. Stephens; John W. Beckwith, Bishop of Ga.; General John W. Gordon, U. S. Senator; Hon. Jno. Gill Shorter, ex-Governor of Ala.; Rev. David Wills, D. D., President Oglethorpe College; Bishop Pierce, of Georgia; Judge Jas. Jackson, Supreme Court, Ga. And did space and time permit we could fill a volume with the highest testimonials.

NECESSARY SHE CUT.—She knew it was necessary to be beautiful to be attractive. She knew health gave beauty a peculiar charm, therefore she made free use of Brown's Iron Bitters, and her captivating smile seemed like a beam of sunshine; her eyes were bright and sparkling, and her skin, oh, 'twas most wondrous fair! Well worthy of a trial is this valuable medicine by all our lady friends.—[Fashion Plate.]

'Tis Now.

Now the chowder's in the pot, and the days are getting hot, and all boggle to swelter with a swelt, swelt, swelt. While the crimson lemonade through a straw enchants the maid, who displaces a bunch of flowers at her belt, belt, belt.

Now we wave the pictured fan, drink the cooling black-and-tan, and we watch the periwinkle by the surf, surf, surf.

And the little tourist happy leels, as he reads his "Puck on Wheels" while he rolls with laughter on the turf, turf, turf.

Now our fancies, quaint and queer, lightly turn to thoughts of beer, and the picnic's everlasting custard pie, pie, pie. And we sit with pretty Nell, beneath a gingham umbrella, gaily boomeranged and shipwrecked by her sigh, sigh, sigh.

Now the cat begins to scowl from the well directed host, and the poodle wears a kettie on his tail, tail, tail.

Now the ice man with a snout slings his haughty summer style, and the plumber bows in solitude his head, head, head.

Now the cuffs and collars melt, now the monte-man is felt, and the circus in the country does appear, 'pear, 'pear.

No news is this by Jo, they are facts all people know, for they're written by the joker every year, year year.—[Puck.]

"KICKING AGAIN NOTHING."—A farmer in the Vermont Legislature had charge of a good bill and had modestly spoken in favor of it. A young politician replied in a long, frothy, highfalutin speech against it. All eyes turned to the farmer, expecting to see him rise in defense of his bill. Observing this, after a time he slowly rose, and elevating his voice to a squeaking pitch, said, "Mr. Speaker! I see my friends expect me to answer the honorable gentleman who has just set down. I can't, Mr. Speaker. I can't; it allus wrenches me so to kick again uthin'." His bill passed none, con. How many little and big people do wrench themselves, or waste their strength, by worrying over things of no account.—[American Agriculturist.]

NEEDING RECONSTRUCTION.—That the South deserves some method of rigid discipline beyond that which has already scourged it is a disagreeable thought, but one which, in the light of recent rumors, forces itself upon a reluctant people. It is now stated that some one down in Mississippi has discovered that cotton seed oil is superior for cooking purposes to the best lard, as by its use rancidness, burning and blackening is avoided. This effort to set king cotton above the hog is clearly a studied and unconstructed insult to the North, which should be resented to the extent of pulverizing every white man in the State.

Indiana has 2,252 women engaged in the honorable occupation of farming, against fifty-two who are put down among the statistics as bar-keepers. The same State reports sixty-six authoresses and 532 women who are keeping boarding houses. One hundred and seven Indiana females sell books, and the other vocations accessible to women are repressed. We notice that Indiana females, when thrown upon their own resources, have a habit of taking good care of themselves.

PENDLETON ON THE TRACK.—A special to the New York Times says it is semi-officially announced that Senator George H. Pendleton intends to be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President two years hence. This announcement is made directly by John G. Thompson, who has gone to Ohio to begin work on plans for a canvass.

From the personal column of a New York paper, we learn that a great many women are traveling around lecturing this season. We know a woman who lectures without traveling around. We had the sad pleasure of listening to one of her strongest efforts a few nights ago, on our return (1 p. m.) from the theatre.

Cure For Dandruff.

When the barber kindly informs his patient that his hair is very badly filled with dandruff, and proposes to shampoo it as a remedy, it is safe to say "No," most positively. The majority of the barbers use as a shampooing liquid, either a solution of "salts of tartar" alone, or mixed with borax. They are probably not aware that "salts of tartar" is but a name for purified potash. When a solution of this is put upon the head it combines with the natural oil of the hair and scalp, and forms a soap which makes a dense lather in the hair; this is washed out, and while it effectually removes the dandruff and dust, it has also removed the oil which is needed to keep the hair in a healthy condition. Avoid all such shampooing. A tablespoonful of powdered borax in a quart of water forms a safe shampooing liquid, but still better is the yolk of an egg, worked thoroughly into the hair, applying a little at a time, and then washing it out. The egg will leave the hair surprisingly clean and the scalp soft and free from dandruff.—[American Agriculturist.]

An exchange truthfully says that there is one reason for advertising that business men rarely consider—its general effect on the prosperity of their own place. The newspaper goes out into the world from week to week as the representative of the city, and men judge of the city more by the newspaper than anything else. If it is newsworthy and able, and many local firms are represented in its advertising columns, they assume at once, and generally correctly, that it comes from a live city—a good city to live in and near—and they thus are drawn thither. The effect is not slight and the suggestion is one which deserves the consideration of every tradesman. Let our business men make a note of this.—[Clarksville Tobacco Leaf.]

No officer of the Union army who was a gentleman is in any way involved in the just denunciation now being poured out upon Burbridge. Confederate and Federal officers and soldiers stand alike in public respect if they were truly soldiers. Burbridge was a brute and a tyrant, and it will hardly avail him, or his friends, anything to attempt to make the storm of indignation, just now being poured upon his head, involve any body else. Col. Thomas M. Green, a loyal Union man and a gentleman, excoriates Burbridge in Cincinnati Commercial and denounces him without stint.—[Glasgow Times.]

Our amusing young townsman, Mr. Louis Pilcher, leaves this week for Louisville, where he expects to tackle the evangelist, Geo. O. Barnes, in a religious debate. Louis will undoubtedly make it very amusing, and we predict that the Barnes troupe with this rising young star will make it lively for Louisville. Poor Louisville, we pity thee!—[Nicholasville Courier.] Pilcher is one of the little asses, that brayed here so vehemently during the Murphy Craze.

A reverend gentleman, who resides in a neighboring town, has the misfortune to own a son who is addicted to drink. The other night, when the family had retired to rest, the son returned home in his usual condition. When the father opened the door to his graceless offspring, he exclaimed, sadly: "Drunk again, Henry, drunk again!" "All right, father," replied the staggering reprobate; "so am I!"

Grim repartee: A bickering pair of Quakers were lately heard in high controversy, the husband exclaiming: "I am determined to have one quiet week with thee!" "But how wilt thou be able to get it?" said the taunting spouse, in that sort of reiteration which married ladies so provokingly indulge in. "I will keep thee a week after thou art dead," was the Quaker's rejoinder.

Ask no woman her age. Never joke with a policeman. Do not play chess with a widow. Never contradict a man that stutters. Be civil to rich uncles and aunts. Your oldest hat of course for an evening party. Always sit next the carver, if you can, at dinner.—[Philadelphia Quiz.]

To raise money for her church, the Rev. Miss Anna Oliver, "the black-eyed girl pastor" of Brooklyn, is to issue 13,000 shares of stock at $1 each, the certificate of stock being a portrait of herself. One of her male parishioners will take five hundred shares.

A First Cousin to A Brass Foundry.

The man who travels on the railroad, and sits down by the side of lone females while laboring under the impression that he recognizes a likeness in their faces to his wife's aunt's cousin, met his match on one of the roads in this vicinity lately. He sat down in the half of a seat, the other half of which was occupied by a pleasant-faced young lady. His first question was:

"Pardon me, miss, but is your name James? I have a cousin of that name, whom you greatly resemble."

"No, sir," was the reply, "my name is not James. But, pardon me, is your name Zinc or Copper?"

"Zinc or Copper? No, ma'am," said the astonished man. "What led you to suppose I had such names?"

"Excuse me," was the quiet reply, "but I thought certain you must be first cousin to a brass foundry."

The man fell over two seats and kicked a bird cage half way down the car in his haste to get into the smoker while the young lady smiled a gentle smile behind her handkerchief.

A New Jersey man has lately patented a new invention in the shape of a trotting sulky. The axle of the new vehicle is curved upward and extends over the horse. The horse travels between the wheels, and the driver's seat is at the summit of the axle. The shafts, which connect, meet in a curve at the rear of the horse, and are attached to the axle at a suitable height. To the upper and lower side of each shaft, and to the harness saddle, springs are attached to prevent the irregular movement of the horse's body from being transmitted to the vehicle. It is claimed for this newly patented vehicle that it is safer traveling for the driver, and that the easy running of the vehicle will give greater speed to the horse.

Henry Mackinson, a Philadelphia boy, aged eleven years, armed with a pistol, was discussing modes of suicide with his aunt, to whom he said he would never cut his throat, but "would do it in this way," and, suiting the action to the word, he placed the muzzle of the weapon to the back of his head and fired. The ball entered his skull, and has not yet been extricated.

Dr. Claytor, of Goodwin, Miss., has been fined $20 for simply "flourishing his pistol." If the Doctor had just thought of it he might have saved $20, increased his reputation and had more flowers and favors than he could have stood up under by shooting some prominent citizen's head off. It isn't every man that can straddle an opportunity.—[C. J.]

New York Star: It is rumored that General Grant and family will shortly move into the White House again, while President Arthur goes to board at a hotel. All of Grant's old cronies are at the White House already, except those who are being prosecuted.

Who don't believe it, but they say that a lightning rod man got hold of the pictures of Mary Anderson and Anna Dickinson in tight, and turning them upside down, is showing them as samples of his new duplex pointed rods.—[Evansville Argus.]

There are only about ten thousand Kentucky Republicans at the farthest who are interested about the distribution of Federal offices. The other hundred thousand only care for the success of Republican principles.—[Louisville Commercial (Rep.)]

The world is said to owe every man a living, but our observation, buttressed pretty thick with experience, teaches us that it takes a sight of scuffling on the part of the fellow who is trying to collect the debt.—[Glasgow Times.]

John M. Starin, of New York, who now has an income of $100,000 a year, began life selling horse manure. The moral of this seems to be, that it is much more profitable to heal a horse than to bet on him.

Everything in nature indulges in amusement. The lightning plays, the thunder rolls, the snow flies, the waves leap and the fields smile. Even the buds shoot and the rivers run.

Silver dollars, with holes in them, are painfully numerous, but they are not half so painfully numerous as holes without any silver dollars around them.

Eight bushels of good lime, 15 bushels of sand and 1 bushel of hair make enough mortar to plaster one hundred square yards.

THE Lincoln delegation to the Convention returned considerably crestfallen and sore over the defeat of their candidate for Appellate Clerk. We enquired of one of the least excitable of them how it happened that the favorite was beaten by the field. "By the most shameful kind of combination," he replied, "and paradoxical as it may appear, Col. Hill's nominating speech, which was, without doubt, the finest effort I ever heard him make, had much to do with the defeat of Col. Wolford." "You see," he continued, "when he made it, the whole Convention was taken by storm and Wolford's stock went away above par, and had a ballot been then taken, no power, hardly, could have kept him from taking the prize. His opponents seeing this, were almost panic stricken, but they conceived, or some of them did, the happy idea of staving off the report of the Committee on Credentials, and on the excuse of trouble with the contesting delegations of Louisville, it notified the Convention that they would not be ready till the morrow. That night all kind of schemes were devised. A half-dozen or more of the candidates had spent their last cent, and borrowed all they could get, to make the canvass, and it was a matter of life or death, and they laid their heads together to defeat at all hazards the apparently coming man."

"Do you believe that this talk that Wolford was defeated because he was a Union soldier, is true?"

"I do not. I think that the result would have been the same, if Wolford had been a Confederate. He was by long odds, the most popular man before the Convention and it was soon recognized that he either had to be defeated by one trick or another, or he was sure to take the plum. My chief reason for thinking that his war affiliations had nothing to do with his defeat, is, that Henry's vote came from that portion of the State, the Eastern, which was the most intensely Union during the war, and which furnished more Union soldiers than any other portion. Besides, the three leading manipulators of Henry's interests were Tom Turner, a bitter Union man, who voted after the war to expatriate all rebel soldiers, and Thos. D. Mareum and Judge Geo. W. McClure, both of whom were Union soldiers. It seems plain to me that if there had been any feeling engendered by the war, in the contest, that those men would have rallied to the support of Gen. Wolford."

"What do you think of the nomination?"

"I regard him as a pretty fair sort of a man, but there were several others that I should have preferred over him. I, however, voted for him after Wolford was dropped, because I believed that next to this, that portion in the State needed some substantial recognition."

The combination that got away with the boys, was Henry, Poore and Gaines, and it is said that after paying Sam Gaines a good salary as first Clerk and general manager of the office, the balance of the funds are to be divided equally between Henry and Poore. We do not think the friends of any candidate have reason to complain. None of them were too good to form combinations had they thought it necessary, and it is too late now to cry, because the winning one got away with them. Capt. Henry was born in Bourbon, in 1840; entered the Confederate service as Lieutenant, and afterwards commanded a Company under Morgan. For a while after the war, he sold goods in Bourbon, and in 1869, he moved to Morgan, where the beginning of the war found him. In 1873 he was elected to the Legislature, and in 1877 was appointed by Mat Adams, as Assistant Clerk of the House of Representatives. He is described as a warm hearted, genial gentleman, of great popularity.

The Ashland friends stand a fair chance to atone, as much as their worthless lives can atone for the murder of the three children on Christmas Eve. They have been indicted by a special grand jury, and the judge has set today for the calling of Neal's case, tomorrow for Craft's, and Friday for Ellis'. Three Companies of armed soldiers guard the prisoners, and there are no fears now that the law will not be allowed to take its course.

Mr. Beck's assertion in a speech in Congress the other day, that the arrests of persons in this State were in sin and brought forth in iniquity, will meet a responsive feeling in every heart, not governed by pecuniary reasons.

It will be seen by the proceedings of the Democratic County Committee published elsewhere, that a primary election is to be held on the 1st Saturday in March, to nominate candidates for County officers. The Committee, we think, acted wisely in excluding all but genuine Democrats from voting in that election. To allow Tum, Dick and Harry, simply on a promise that he will support the ticket at the August election, to assist in choosing our standard bearers, is preposterous. We want Democrats and good ones at that, to say who shall be our candidates. We desire none of the riff-raff, whose promises are made for a drink of whisky, to be broken when a Republican or any other man proposes the same treatment. There may be those who will think that young men, who have recently arrived at the voting age, ought to be allowed to participate in this election; but those young men, if they are in earnest about espousing the Democratic cause, will certainly not object to older and more experienced heads, selecting at least the first ticket for them. There are seven weeks yet for the candidates to stir themselves, and plenty of them yet for others to enter the race. All of the candidates with whom we have conversed, and we have with a majority of them, are perfectly satisfied, both with the time and manner, and we hope to see the utmost harmony prevail.

THERE has been another chapter in the Burbridge-Blackburn war of words. Blackburn sent him a scorching, which he returned with the endorsement, "unworthy of notice." The Capt. then wrote an open letter to the public, in which he denounces Burbridge as an outcast from his State by reason of his atrocities. He had on all fitting occasions expressed his detestation of him, and had frankly told him so when asked in regard to it. His response was not an appeal to uses by which gentlemen have been governed, but an attempt to retort by counter insult, and he therefore dismissed him, knowing that nothing that he could say against him would increase the odium that his shameful personal history had brought upon him. Burbridge replied in a lengthy card, also addressed to the public. It is pretty tart, but he says he will not challenge Blackburn, or put his life in jeopardy, for he has a higher duty imposed upon him. He says he is not afraid, oh! no, and if any body thinks he is, he will deeply regret it. It is said that Blackburn will take no further notice of the cowardly, inauspicious, certainly not through the papers, but if their paths should cross, Burbridge may look for a vigorous application of his sole-leather to the central part of his anatomy, or a well applied rawhide to his cringing back.

JOHN D. WHITE has offered a bill in Congress to prevent the manufacture or sale of any kind of intoxicating liquors that can be made by the fermentation of grain, starch molasses or sugar. He was smart enough not to mention the apple or the peach, so he will of course remain solid with his constituents. Moonshine brandy is the height of their ambition as a beverage.

FIVE persons, all negroes, were hung last Friday, Thaddeus Baker and Wm. Ward, each killed a woman of their own race, for which they performed the double shuffle at St. Louis and Reidsville, N. C. Joe Hay, Eldridge Scales and Matilda Carter climbed the golden stair via the hempen line for the murder of Nick Carter, the latter's husband.

It is said that the fine Italian hand of Judge Harris, manipulated the late Convention. A "Democratic leader" tells the Louisville Commercial that Harris is fixing the triggers to make Beckner, of Clark, Governor, and himself U. S. Senator. We hope the last part of the arrangement at least, will never be carried out.

SCORE one for John D. White. He was asked to introduce the delegation which visited the President in the interest of Burbridge, and consented to do so, but on learning the object of their visit, refused. This manly action ought to cover a multitude of faults that Johnnie is said to possess, from all true Kentuckians.

THE Auditor's report shows that $114.57 were paid to pro tem Judge in this District last year. The sum so paid, run from nothing in Judge Boyd's District, the 12th, to $881.54 in Puley's the 15th.

UNCLE SAMUEL OWEN, of the Central Courier, is putting on airs. The last number of his excellent paper was printed on cream white, thereby showing that the publisher does not care for expenses.

ONE Col. John H. McHenry, a delegate to the Frankfort Convention publishes a card in the Louisville Commercial, saying that he will in no event, support the nominee for the Appellate Clerkship, because Colonel Wolford was not chosen; and calls on the Ex Federal soldiers to join him in the formation of an independent party in Kentucky. The Col. seems to have no sense of the obligation imposed on every honorable man who participated in the Convention, or he could not act as he has. No man who does not propose to stand by the work of a Convention ought to take a part in it, and if the Col., who is said to be still sore because he was not elected to Congress in the Second District, is the manner of man that his letter shows him to be, it is much better for the party if he does leave it for good and all. He is most too small a man to head an independent movement in this great Democratic State, and his evident desire to become a Mahone will hardly be realized.

AFTER an effort lasting two and a half days, Judge Davidge closed his argument for the prosecution in the Guitau case, Friday, and was followed by Reed, for the defense, who talked for a day. Guitau has prepared a lengthy speech, which is published in full in yesterday's papers, but which contains nothing new, except that if it was to do over again he would not kill the President for a million of dollars. He admits that his act was fool hardy, and yet clings to the assertion that he was inspired to do as he did. There is a growing belief that Guitau's days are not long upon the earth.

MAJ. A. E. RICHARDS, who will be remembered as one of the State Electors on the Hancock and English ticket, was made Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, in place of Col. J. Stoddard Johnston, resigned. The latter has served his party long and well, and deserves all the good things that are being said of him.

The galleries of the Virginia House of Representatives have been indefinitely closed to order to prevent their being made a loafing place by the idle colored men of the capital.

LEGISLATIVE.

A motion to reconsider the Whipping Post Bill has been entered and there is a chance of its passage yet.

A Legislative Committee will visit the contractors who are working convicts to ascertain if they are treated humanely.

A bill to incorporate the Stanford Woolen Mills is before the House. The incorporators are: B. Mattingly, J. W. McAlister, J. H. McAlister and H. C. Bright.

A Senate bill proposing to amend chapter twenty-nine, General Statutes, that State officials shall go to prison for one to five years in case of embezzlement. This bill makes a breach of trust a felony.

A bill has passed the Senate to fine persons who tear down fences and otherwise trespass on their neighbor's property, and those who throw the carcass of a dead animal in any spring or water course, a sum not exceeding $25 nor less than $10 for the first offense and $100 for the second.

The Senate has passed the Marital Right bill, which gives to a woman the right to control property she had in her own right before marriage, and which she might gain afterwards by legacy or otherwise. The estate of courtesy is abolished, and the husband has only a dower in the property of his wife.

NOTES OF CURRENT EVENTS.

Galveston, Texas, has just suffered a million-and-a-half fire. The heaviest business portion of the city was burned.

Dr. Johnson and son, of Huntington Tenn., for murder, were sent to the penitentiary one for 15 and the other for 10 years.

The House Committee which has had the subject under consideration, has decided to present a bill to extend the charters of all National Banks twenty years.

The gross earnings of all the railroads in the United States in 1881, were according to the Financial Chronicle $240,902,507, or about $30,000,000 more than the year before.

The New York Legislature is divided as follows: Senators—Republicans, 15; Democrats, 14; KELLY bolters, 3; Representatives—Republicans, 61; Democrats, 61. KELLY bolters, 6.

FRANKFORT, KY., January 13.—Captain Thomas J. South, son of the late Colonel Jerry South, and Deputy Warden of the Penitentiary, died this morning of rheumatism of the heart, after a short illness.

—Dennis Wynn, who with Mrs. Moreland, was charged with the murder of the latter's son, was acquitted by a Bourbon county jury. Mrs. M. has forfeited her bond and is now an outlaw.

—A collision on the Hudson River railroad last night killed six members of the New York Legislature, including Senator WAGNER, inventor of the WAGNER sleeping cars. Some of the cars caught on fire, and there was a horrible time.

—Reports received at the Treasury Department state that "unutilized silver" coin is being thrown out of trade all over the country. The United States mint at Philadelphia is receiving large quantities of it for redemption, and paying for it only the bullion value. It is becoming almost impossible to pass mutilated silver.

—A dispatch from Richmond, Va., says: The well-known vocalist, Caroline Richings Bernard, is being critically ill at her residence in this city with small-pox. Poor woman, if she recovers she will make but a poor show on the stage. Audiences don't often run to seepock-marked singers, even if they have a good voice. LATER.—She died Sunday.

—The directors of the Cincinnati, N. O. & T. P. R. R., late Cincinnati Southern, have declared a dividend of 11 per cent from the 12th of October until the 1st of January, making two months and nineteen days. The operating expenses have been, indeed, low; not exceeding 50 per cent. of the earnings. The surplus is very large, which would indicate that a dividend of 10 or 12 per cent. might be declared annually.

—The Governor of Virginia vetoed the bill "To ratify and confirm the consolidation of the Richmond and Southwestern Railroad Company with the Virginia, Kentucky and Ohio Narrow-gauge Railroad Company, under the name and style of 'The Richmond and Louisville Railroad Company.'" His objections to the bill do not extend to the lines of railroad laid down or to the proposed consolidation of these lines, but to objects to the provision of the charter which confers extraordinary aid and dangerous powers, unnecessary to the accomplishment of its avowed objects.

—One night last week as John M. Walton was sitting reading at his home near Greensburg, Ind., he was shot in the head by some one who fired through the window. A negro man was shortly after arrested on suspicion, and he admitted that he had done the deed for one Garrett, who for years had had criminal intercourse with Mrs. Walton, and who wanted the old man out of the way, since he had found out his wife's infidelity. On learning that the negro had given him away, Garrett attempted to kill himself, but unfortunately did not succeed, and he is now in jail. Mrs. Walton is also under arrest as an accomplice with the prospect that the whole party will pull hemp. Walton was from Boone county, Ky., whither his body was brought for interment.

The Lord or the Newspapers, which? [For the Interior Journal.]

—The following is from the Denville Advocate's "Religious Matters," and is filled, contains rather an extraordinary piece of logic: "The Courier Journal is giving Mr. Barnes aid and comfort in his evangelizing in Louisville, and therefore (I father the logic) we may look for the most astonishing results in the way of conversions according to the easy method presented by the 'good evangelist.' To this support that has been given so freely by the local secular papers at places where Mr. Barnes has labored, can be attributed in a very large measure his astonishing success." Now all we Kentuckians are proud of the Courier-Journal, and in this section of the State we have had the best of reasons to be proud of our local papers too, and be it understood, would not for an instant even seem to detract from the well-deserved fame, or to underrate the power of either, only there is an idea prevalent among us—and I am inclined to think it has found a lodgment in Mr. Barnes' own head, and possibly is a source of some comfort and encouragement to him—that the Lord Almighty Himself has some hand in the matter. Possibly the Press manages the helm at important places, such as Denville and Louisville, but I feel almost sure the Lord takes hold and does the best he can where the meeting strikes a town like Lancaster and Hustonville where no better help is to be had. Surely these be the footprints of a stranger. I fail to recognize the marks of Mr. Barnes' number nines in it.

THE boys are fixing for another Big Skating Tournament on the 11th of February.

MONEY TO LOAN—$3,000 on real estate collateral in Lincoln county. See M. C. Saffley.

FLORIDA people are luxuriating on ripe strawberries. In just too utterly too to contemplate.

ALL of the Street Lamps were lighted Sunday night, for which the owners will please accept ours and the public's most sincere thanks.

MR. JAMES A. ANDERSON, of Lancaster, who was in Stanford, yesterday, tells that 13 slaves of stock in the Lancaster National Bank, belonging to the estate of George W. Hunsley, were sold on Saturday, to John S. Gill, at $152.25 per share.

THE RINK.—Owing to the bad weather the crowd was not so large at the rink, Friday night, but quite sufficient for the comfort of the skaters, who seemed to enjoy themselves more than usual. The band did splendidly, and were warmly praised. They will be on hand again next Friday night.

TO SOMERSET CORRESPONDENT.—We neglected to answer you Friday. The narrowest point of the circuit, which the contestants made at the Tournament, is 45 feet. The distance around is not short of 140 feet. Can your skaters make three times that distance and take 6 rings on the first round?

THE SPANISH BIRD.—John N. Menefee, sheriff of Lincoln county, was in the city on yesterday, and settled in full with the Auditor the revenue of his county for 1931, being the second sheriff who has received his quitus. Mr. Menefee has also settled in full with the court the revenue of his county for 1931. [Frankfort Yeoman.]

We have been shown a letter from Miss Ida Russell, the young lady now attending the Agricultural and Mechanical College at Lexington, by an appointment of Commissioner J. M. Phillips. She is greatly pleased with the institution, and in this connection Judge Phillips wishes us to say that any young lady or gentleman in Lincoln desiring to attend that College, can do so on his recommendation, free of tuition.

THE DEMOCRATS and other true men of Danville, since learning of Gen. Fry's fickleness in aiding the infamous Harbidge, by heading a Kentucky delegation, and calling on the President in his behalf, have signed almost unanimously and forwarded to Washington, a petition asking that Morphy be appointed to the Post Office. We notice that Mr. Afford was one of the aforesaid delegation, and his action has not increased the not over waning love of the people of this section for him.

THE STANFORD BANNER.—A copy of this paper, the first we ever saw, has been handed us by Mr. T. W. Higgins. It is edited by Dan Parker, and bears date July 16th, 1898. Among its contents we notice the death of Charles Crow, a nephew of Judge Lytle, who was killed by being thrown from a horse; an obituary by Eld. W. L. Williams of Miss Susan Holmes; a call on R. Carson signed "A Citizen," asking him to address the people of Crab Orchard and Waynesburg on the current political questions of the day, and a list of appointments of Col. Frank Wolford to speak as elector in the Seymour and Blair canvass. Among the advertisements is one of Joe Severance as a druggist, C. H. Rochester & Son, as a wholesale and retail grocers and commission merchants, and a mirabile dicta one of D. W. Vandevor.

Att. indebted to Hale & Nunnally are hereby notified to call and settle at once. This means off.

THE splendid farm "Arcadia," the property of Col. Isaac Shelby, will be sold on County Court day. It lies in this county, and contains 500 acres.

J. T. HARRIS, next door to the Commercial Hotel, keeps constantly on hand all kinds of fresh and other meats, vegetables, oysters, canned goods, and everything in the eating line at reasonable figures. It is the only regular market ever in Stanford.

THE Stanford Woolen Mills are more than doubling their machinery, and it will soon be a big institution for the town. Over 30 persons are already employed there, and that number will be increased. We shall take occasion to tell all about the workings of these mills before long.

POISONED.—Tom Robinson used a knife to spread strychnine on pieces of bread to kill rats, and afterwards ate with the same knife. It is supposed that particles of the poison stuck to it, at any rate he was taken deathly sick in a short time, when he mounted a horse and came to town. An emetic was administered and he was soon O. K. again.

DEPUTY ASSASSIN.—Mrs. T. M. Pennington presented her liege lord with a pound of gold on Friday evening, and the said man thinks it is another argument in favor of his re-election as Assessor. It is remarkable fact that the arrival of the little fellow occurred just twelve years to the day and hour since the birth of Miss Foxie, previously the youngest child.

We learn that Mr. Josiah Bishop and wife came near being drowned in the Hanging Fork where it crosses the pike between McKinney and Hartsouville. The vehicle they were in was washed down stream but they succeeded in "pulling" to the shore. Mr. Bishop was not acquainted with the ford, and did not know that it was too deep to risk.

MR. S. P. CHAM, who has been employed by the Town Trustees to Vaccinate the poorer class, has been kept busily engaged since Saturday. He has operated on nearly 200 persons. The fearful spread of Small Pox all over the country, makes it the duty of every person to accept the preventive, and parents, especially, should see that their children are promptly vaccinated.

It has rained every day this year and the prospect is fine for a much longer continuance. The whole country is covered with water and cellars here have gotten to be huge basins of water. The furnace, under the Christian Church, which heats the building, has been submerged and Sunday it was impossible of course to build a fire. It can be easily drained, however, and will be at once.

A SLIDE occurred yesterday between the Hanging Fork and Knob Lick, which would have wrecked the South bound train on the L. & N. had not a little boy, whose name we have not heard, run several hundred yards down the track and stopped it. A detention of three quarters of an hour was caused by the obstruction. The little boy's name should be ascertained and written in letters of gold and apples of silver.

THE family of Mr. Fielding Thurmond has been sorely afflicted this winter. He has lost two children within the space of a month, and has himself just recovered from a long and dangerous illness. His son Logan, whose death is announced in its proper place, was a fine specimen of Kentucky manhood, being 6 feet 4 inches tall and proportionately formed. The burial, which was to have taken place at Danville Sunday, was postponed until yesterday, as no where in this section could be found a coffin long enough for him. One had to be ordered from Cincinnati which did not arrive until Sunday's midnight express.

MR. JOHN BLAIN, County Clerk, has received a decidedly complimentary letter from State Auditor Hewitt for the excellence with which the Assessor's books of this county were copied and arranged. He says after an examination and verification: "I feel that I should thank you for your book, it having proved entirely correct, not an error found in it. And this is no far exception to the general rule, that I must give you thanks." As the work was done entirely by Mrs. E. A. Blain, Deputy Clerk, we are not willing that Mr. Blain shall have all the credit for it. The job is an exceedingly difficult one, requiring a great deal of time and patience, and the praise ought to go where it properly belongs. Mrs. Blain is a very quick in comprehending the duties of the office, and we do not suppose there is a better qualified deputy in the State than she.

DYING.—Mr. John Cook, as clever and as honest an Irishman as ever sailed to America, has been in a dying condition since Sunday. He has for a long time suffered with aneurism of the aorta, a dilatation of the largest artery of the body. This, pressing against his windpipe, has given him great difficulty in breathing, amounting sometimes almost to asphyxiation. He has been unable to lie down for several days, and for the most part, has been held up on his feet by friends. Mr. Cook came here about 15 years ago as a contractor, and afterwards settled down at Richmond Junction, where he has kept a boarding house for railroad employees. He is thought well of by everybody, and his death will be universally regretted. He is a Catholic, and yesterday a priest arrived and administered the consolation of his church to him. Although speechless, he gave signs of a knowledge of all that was going on. LATER.—A telegram from the Junction informs us that the old man's tired spirit crossed the silent river at 6:10 last evening.

DEATHS.

—THURMOND.—Of typhoid fever, on the morning of the 14th, A. Logan Thurmond, son of Mr. Fielding Thurmond, aged 23.

—MR. THURMOND joined the Christian Church last fall, while E. H. Shouse was preaching at Turnerville and had since endeavored to walk the straight and narrow path. His remains were taken to Danville for interment.

RELIGIOUS.

—Bourne Grogan Pennington, professed religion Sunday and was baptized and received into the Presbyterian Church.

—Rev. Gilbert Gibbs, formerly of Hancock county, Va., but for some time a resident of Catlettsburg, Ky., was adjudged a lunatic on Saturday. He is 74 years old.

—Bishop Kavanaugh, of the M. E. Church, South, was 80 years old last Saturday, when a large number of Methodists in Louisville, where he lives, made him a birthday call.

—Since they have no pastor, the members of the Christian Church are doing their own preaching. It was Mr. Joe Severance's turn Sunday, when he delivered a very entertaining little discourse.

—Rev. W. T. Tyree closed a meeting at Harbidge, Pulaski county, recently, which resulted in 13 conversions. He is now holding one at Eubank's Station, and up to Saturday, his labors had been rewarded with 17 additions.

—Should any of the Churches desire to put up one of the large street lamps in front of their buildings, McAlister & Stagg kindly offer to furnish them at strictly cost. Each Church needs such a lamp, and we hope this liberal proposition will be considered.

—The interest in Mr. Barnes' meetings in Louisville increases daily, and on Sunday the large building in which he holds his services was packed like unto a box of sardines. The Courier-Journal has published quite a number of his sermons, which makes that paper decidedly sought after in this, the house for many years of the distinguished evangelist. By the way, Mr. Barnes seems to have gone back on his first love, THE INTERIOR, since he has larger papers to do him honor.

LAND, STOCK AND CROP.

—John N. Menefee, Sheriff, purchased of James Coffey, 50 acres of land adjacent to the town of Hustonville, for $600.

—Thomas House sold to Underwood & Eubanks, half of his farm, about 150 acres, rather poorly improved, for $45 per acre.

—Joseph C. Riffe sold to George Riffe, his aged Shorthorn Bull for $200. He also sold three bull calves, one for $75 and the other two for $100.

—It may be new to some of our tobacco growers that the county which produces the largest tobacco crop is not in Virginia or Kentucky, but in Pennsylvania. Lancaster county in that State takes the lead. The crop in 1931 was 23,940,000 pounds, valued at 16,392 acres.

—Merrin & Woodson, of Missouri, bought of McCintock, of Bourbon, a carload of Young Marys, Rose of Sharon and Phillips, at $125 per head; one was a bull and the remainder heifers, with calf. The Messrs. Merrin are here now, and say these animals are for their own stock farm.

—DANVILLE CATTLE.—Capt. H. T. Bush reports the stock market at Danville yesterday as follows: Sloppy, gloomy day, but a good crowd was in town. About 150 cattle on market of common quality; they sold well, with a strong demand for good ones. One bunch of yearlings weighing 535 pounds, sold at $4.50 per hundred lbs. A good many calves on market, but few offered publicly. But little demand for ploughhorses.

—John F. White, of this county, recently shipped from Point Lick station 52 3-year-old cattle that averaged 1515 lbs. He sold them in Cincinnati for nearly $5,000, or $94.68 per head. He can now buy all the land in Jackson county, provided he could get it at 25 cents per acre as he did 500 acres the other day. He and other members of the family now own about eleven thousand acres out there. [Richmond Register.]

LINCOLN COUNTY.

Engleman's Mill.

—Born, to the wife of Mr. J. C. Gentry, a bouncing big boy.

—Harvey McRoberts, Bruce & Co.'s good looking clerk, was at Church Sunday, smiling at our girls.

—Candidates are getting to be so common down this way that the dogs have quit barking at them. Every other man you meet is one.

—A worthless cur made a raid on Mr. G. P. Bright's sheep a few days ago, but he was stampeded before he had time to do any serious damage.

—People are never satisfied. The more they get the more they want. They are just as eager to get the INTERIOR JOURNAL twice a week as they were once a week.

—There is some talk of a voting precinct being established at our little town, Bright. One of our popular young men has announced himself a candidate for Magistrate, already.

—Sam Engleman, better known as "long Sam," has yielded to the call of his many friends and consented to make the race for Jailor. He is a "long" horse, with plenty of bottom, and will make it hot for the boys.

—Last Sunday, while Rev. J. S. Sims was in the midst of his discourse, the stovepipe fell down and created some little disturbance by the soot flying through the congregation, which caused a good deal of sneezing and coughing.

—Impudent sheep and imported dogs don't go well together. Tim Engleman had a fine bull dog sent to him from Atlanta, Ga., a short time ago. He thought a good deal of him, so he got into his dock of sheep a few days ago and killed two of the finest he had. So much for a fine dog.

—Mrs. Will Yeager, a teacher of the infant class in the Providence Sunday School, gave up her class at the close of last year, so the little flock was without a shepherd. They had an election and voted unanimously for their same teacher. She still refused to accept. So last Sunday, Abba Pope, a little girl about 8 or 9 years old got up before a large audience with tears in her eyes, and made a very touching little speech to Mrs. Yeager, telling her how much good she had done, and how much the class loved her. Before she got through entreating her, every heart in the house began to melt like snow before the noonday sun, and there was a general flow of tears. Mrs. Yeager couldn't resist any longer. She, with tears in her eyes, agreed to teach the class as long as she is blessed with health to do so. See how much good a little child can do.

—A few nights ago we were somewhat startled by a sudden outpouring of music. We thought at first it was a serenading party, and was in the act of throwing out our card, but discovered that the music was being made on the Piano in an adjoining room. We were then somewhat alarmed, thinking, perhaps, the house was haunted. Knowing that there was no one in that room, we listened at it some time, but under the circumstances, we couldn't enjoy it much, besides they were playing an operatic piece, and we never did like that kind of music. There seemed to be no end to the piece, so we mustered up courage enough to go in and see who the performer could be, and, lo, and behold, it was two cats playing a duet, by running backwards and forwards across the keys of the Piano.

MR. VERNON DEPARTMENT.

Sam. M. Burdett, Editor.

—The Grand Jury have reported about 60 indictments. They expected to adjourn yesterday evening.

—It was raining again yesterday morning, but then it has begun to rain every Sunday this year and kept it up until Saturday night.

—F. L. Thompson desires all those indebted to him to call and settle at once. He needs money this week, and he hopes this notice will not pass unheeded.

—The most perfect quiet has prevailed here since the breeze of last week. The participants in that affair and everybody else are heartily ashamed as they should be.

—The K. C. engineers changed their headquarters to Mrs. Hitt's or Ranford's yesterday. They say that in order to get the road into Mt. Vernon, it will have to run for a few miles on a 75 foot grade.

—The trial of W. A. Owens for murder began last Friday. The regular panel was soon exhausted and several bystanders examined, and two jurors, Elisha Bullock and Riley Jordan, were obtained. It appearing that jury could not be obtained in the county, the sheriff was ordered to summon sixty men from Pulaski county to appear in the Court-house yesterday morning, from whom it was supposed a jury could be obtained.

—The following damage cases have been tried at this term of the Court: J. S. Calloway vs. Geo. Calloway, for shooting horses, damages laid at $100, verdict of jury for $25; A. Beasley vs. C. Crooke and J. D. Chandler, for assault, damages claimed $1,125, verdict for Crooke, and against Chandler for one dollar; E. A. Grant vs. C. Mullins & Co., for trespass, damages claimed $500, verdict for one cent. The damage suit of L. Main vs. Pine Hill Coal Company, was continued till the next term.

—PERSONAL.—Mr. E. D. Smith, a young man from Livingston, obtained license to practice law at this term and is now ready for clients. Miss Maggie Adams has returned from Paint Lick. Mrs. M. H. Owsley came up with Judge Owsley Thursday evening and remained until Saturday. Judge W. H. Randall, of London, was in attendance at the Circuit Court last week, and was warmly greeted by his many friends. Our people have the greatest affection and respect for Judge Randall.

WAYNE COUNTY.

Monticello.

—Messrs. Granville C. Marshall Duncan and Shelby Ragan started South today with 72 head of mules and horses, mostly stock raised by themselves.

—A large portion of Elk Spring Valley is covered with water in consequence of insufficient outlet from the vast quantity (of water) that collects there.

—Messrs. A. J. Hayden and Charles Orman, who sold their farms some time ago, have not as yet their future homes yet, but will most likely choose locations in Blue Grass.

—Mr. A. S. Jones and family have arrived and will soon take possession of the Cowan farm, lately purchased near Mill Springs. Mr. Sam. Cowan informs me that he will locate for the present in Salina county, Missouri.

—Mr. James Kindrick and Miss Ethel Ingram, both of this county, were married on the evening of the 11th at the Union Church in Monticello, by Elder C. W. Sewell. The bridal party were entertained at the residence of Mr. William J. Kindrick, Sr., on the same evening.

—Mr. W. P. Jones, our clever Steubenville bachelor friend, we are glad to know is able to get around with the aid of crutches, notwithstanding the serious fracture of his leg, that he suffered some time ago. And we are especially glad to know that his lameness will not injure his prospects in the Matrimonial Market in the least.

—W. T. Francis & Co. are having a fine season for floating logs down the tributaries of the South Fork River. The continuous rains keep the branches swollen sufficiently to float timber, and we learn that they have succeeded in lodging several thousand logs at the boom at Point Harbidge. The above is regarded as a very successful feat, as the practicability of getting timber out of the tributaries of the South Fork was questioned even by those living in that region.

—According to the Auditor's report, the grand and petit juries cost the State during the last fiscal year $151,405.79, and witnesses $65,000.79. State officers and others, $143,306.91; State officers and others, $205,000; the total expenses for all purposes being $2,358,643.49. There are 76 pauper counties in the State, which draw from the treasury $307,853.15 more than they put in. Among these pauper counties are Casey, Pulaski, Rockcastle, Wayne, Anderson and Russell, in our immediate vicinity.

Proceedings Democratic Committee.

Pursuant to a call the Democratic Committee met in Stanford, Saturday, January 14th. Present, W. G. Welch, R. B. Woods, R. H. Bronaugh, James A. Givens, James E. Lynn, Sam J. Embry, J. R. Napier and W. P. Walton. The Chairman stated the object of the meeting, and suggested a general expression of views as to the manner of selecting candidates for County officers. It was the unanimous belief that a primary election would give the most satisfaction, and that mode was upon motion of Mr. Embry adopted. Mr. Napier moved that the first Saturday in March be fixed as the day that said election shall be held, which after considerable discussion was also adopted. It was then decided that the election shall be held in the usual voting places of the various precincts, except as hereinafter stated, by the officers named below; that the vote be viva voce; that it be taken between the hours of 7 A. M. and 5 P. M., and that none but those who voted for Hancock and English will be allowed to vote, except they were prevented by absence or sickness and are known to the Judges to be good Democrats.

When the polls are closed and the count made, the officers of the various voting places shall certify the number of votes that each candidate received, and forward a statement immediately to the Chairman of the Committee, who shall in the presence of the Secretary and any other of the committee who care to be present, open such returns and, after ascertaining those of the Candidates, who have received the highest number of votes, declare the nominees of the party.

The following gentlemen are appointed to hold said primary elections: At Walnut Flat Precinct—Monroe Curtis, T. C. Coffey, Judges; J. G. Lynn, Clerk. Crab Orchard—H. W. Farris, A. Carson, Judges; Stephen Birch, Clerk. Turnersville—John Bailey, Richard Bibb, Judges; John O. Neal, Clerk. Hustonville—Sammel Reid, M. S. Peyton, Judges; F. M. Yowell, Clerk. Waynesburg—E. S. Gooch, C. C. Brown, Judges; Wm. R. Gooch, Sr., Clerk. Highland—Wm. Clymer, John Young, Judges D. A. Haugh, Clerk. Stanford—James Paxton, A. L. Hale, Judges; John Bright, Clerk. In the absence of one of the officers, the other two can fill the vacancy, and in case none of them are present, the County Committee for that precinct shall appoint a new set of officers.

On motion of Mr. Givens, who stated that McKinney Station was much the more convenient point for the voters of the Turnersville precinct, it was decided that the election be held at McKinney for that precinct.

The vote of the two Stanford precincts will be taken together in the County Court room.

Mr. J. E. Lynn offered his resignation, stating that he had moved out of the Walnut Flat precinct, and upon motion J. G. Lynn was appointed in his stead.

No further business appearing the Committee adjourned.

W. G. WELCH, Chairman.
W. P. WALTON, Secretary.

A Tragedy.

A correspondent writing from Vienna says: I can not close this letter without chronicling a tragic event which took place recently. It was on the Northern frontiers of this Empire, over a gloomy Saxony, the scene of an inn, time, evening. Many old customers of the place were assembled in their snug room, with its time-polished tables, its tall tiled stove, its amazing pictures of saints and angels. Beer enough to float an iron-clad, wine enough to intoxicate a continent, had been served out in that place since its first dedication to Bacchus two centuries ago. To-night the worship of the wine-crowned deity was proceeding as merrily as usual, and the air was thick with tobacco smoke, when a man with a sleeping child in his arms slouched in and sat down in the corner. He drank a glass or two of beer, while the child, a golden-haired little fellow of about five years, rested his head on the table and went on with his nap. The jolly toppers soon forgot all about the stranger, who, after awhile, desired to be shown to his room, as he wished to put his son to bed. But soon after an angry dispute was heard without. At the foot of the stairs, the father, using shocking language, the child whining piteously: Father, father, you know I have been unable to go upstairs by myself ever since I broke my leg." "Nonsense," exclaimed the man menacingly, "you can get up very well if you choose, and besides you have only yourself to thank for your broken leg—up you go, or I will beat you black and blue," and he administered a cruel blow to the crumpled. Several of the guests had come out in the passage, and now remonstrated vehemently with his brutal father. "Is that your child, you monster?" asked one. "What's that to you," was the answer. "Yes, oh, yes, he is my father," moaned the boy, as he sat helpless on the stairs, and rocked himself in an agony of tears. The man became still more enraged, and would, doubtless, have belabored his son had not persons present laid hold of him, exclaiming: "Cease your brutality, or we fetch the police." But this only had effect of throwing the father in a paroxysm of rage. He drew a knife, and struggled frantically. "Take care, take care," screamed the boy, "he will rip us all up as he did my poor mother." "Little fiend," yelled the father, and, freeing himself with a great effort, he buried the knife in the child's body. The poor little soul sank down with a groan. A shout of indignation came from the others, who rushed at him en masse; but the man, taking his hat off politely, said with a winning smile: "Gentlemen, we have here to do with a wooden child. I am a ventriloquist—and you mean one, either, as you admit." A pause of speechless astonishment, during which could have been heard dropping of a traditional pin, and then the rafter shook with prolonged (Homeric) laughter. The clever deceiver was dragged into the parlor, where, besides exhibiting many a funny trick of the voice, he took much more wine than was good for him, and finally rolled off to bed with his pockets full of money and his murdered child smiling blandly under his arm.

The following is a copy of a postal card written to Lotta by one of Atlanta's school girls: "Beautiful Lotta!—Do, pray, please come, give a matinee and play 'Bob' in Atlanta. So many of us girls want dreadfully to see you, but can't get $3 at a time in pi money. If you give a matinee, fifty-cent one, I just declare you would have the biggest house on record. Now, wont you, splendid, glorious, jolly, rollicking, smashing, darling, bewitching, Lotta! Then you have the blessing of a thousand school girls who have not any means to loot the hill at the opera-house."

"Why do you insist on my marrying you, instead of a clergyman?" rather irritably inquired Judge Hunt of man who had been waiting at the Judge's chambers all day, with a license in one hand and a woman in the other. "Well, Judge," said the bridegroom, with a cautious wink, as he leaned over and whispered in the Judge's ear, "you see women are so condemned on our side, that I thought I'd just open an account where I might get credit in case I were here to have a divorce some time when business was bad."

Bishop Bloomfield, who has been a widower and had several children, married a second time a widow with a family. One day he asked a country clergyman to dine with him, telling him, "you will only meet our family party." The clergyman found a much larger number assembled in the drawing-room than he had anticipated, and was introduced by the Bishop thus: "These are mine, those are hers, and those are ours."

A New Man—BYRONIA CRED—HARTWELL, (Ga., Feb. 10, 1881.—I want to say a good word for Brown's Iron Bitters. I am about sixty years of age; have a weak, nervous, and nervous work to do. I have been taking—and various other kinds of whisky bitters to give me an appetite, and the only appetite I got was one for drink. Rev. Mr. Anderson, the presiding elder for the district, visited with me not long ago, suffering dreadfully with dyspepsia. I got him Brown's Iron Bitters. They cured him. After he left, I concluded to take that remaining in the bottle, and I assure you it has made a new man out of me. I have no desire for stimulants, and I believe I could eat a pair of old boots and digest them as easily as rice. (From the Illn. J. H. Bennett, Hart Co., Ga.)

The city of Richmond, Va., generously remunerates its physicians with seven cents for each child vaccinated.

Peculiar Weddings.

Numerous peculiar weddings are happening nowadays. A girl at Connersville, N. C., was locked in a room by a father, who chained a savage bulldog under the window; but her lover poisoned the dog, pried open the window, and carried her to a clergyman.

Mrs. Reeder, on the death of her husband, in Baltimore, received the following letter from Franklin Broilard, of Carroll, Mo.: "I have just heard the news. Will you marry me now? Enclosed find $100 to loving you and your children here. Broilard and Mrs. Reeder had been engaged before the war; but an uncontradicted report that he had been killed in battle, led her to marry another man. When he went West and waited twenty years to renew the courtship. She said yes.

Old Edgerton, of Bellevue, Iowa, decided to get rid of his wife and marry a younger woman. This he accomplished by means of an irregular divorce and with the consent of the original wife, who remains in the Edgerton establishment as housekeeper, while the bride plays the idle lady. A Nashville girl being forbidden to marry her lover, promised obedience, but one day requested her father to hand their pastor a note on his way to business. This he was unsuspectingly led to deliver the invitation to the clergyman to call at once and perform the prohibited ceremony, and the latter, presuming that parental consent had been obtained, readily obeyed the summons.

Miss Emma Abbott, the prima-donna, arrived in St. Louis on Saturday quite ill, and a surgeon was called in to alleviate her suffering. It appears that a couple of weeks ago, while playing in Chicago, the lady became alarmed at the presence of small-pox in that city, and concluded to be vaccinated. Although as a general thing this operation is not a very serious one, the lady dreaded it from the fact that it would for a time disfigure her shapely arm, and as that must be exposed almost every evening, it would never do to think of such a thing for a moment. But if not on the arm, where? A council was held with her husband, and it was finally decided that the operation should be performed on the oh, horror of horrors—left limb, and oh, that we should live to tell it—above the knee. This was done, and as the vaccine commenced in a short time to perform its duty the aforesaid left limb commenced to become inflamed and very troublesome, so much so that the lady had to give up her acting for a few days, but she had recovered enough to leave with the troupe for Louisville.

One Sunday evening a well-known revivalist preached from the text, "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou Me?" In the audience there was an engineer named Saul, accompanied by his wife and little girl. The reverend gentleman repeated his text several times, "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou Me?" At last, the daughter of Saul, thinking that the text had a personal application, looked up into the face of her father and said, "Don't mind him, father, he's been drinking."

EXPECTANCY OF LIFE.—Life insurance companies have, by the close study of vital statistics, come to the following conclusions as to what may be expected of the continuance of life: A person 1 year old may expect to live 39 years longer; of 10 years, 51; of 20 years, 41; of 30 years, 34; of 40 years, 28; of 50 years, 21; of 60 years, 14; of 70 years, 9; of 80 years, 4.

A Deadwood man saw another reach for his hip pocket, thought the fellow meant to draw a revolver on him, so shot him dead. Then he found that the man was about to draw a flask to treat, and much regretted his hasty act. But he remarked that the last wishes of the deceased should be carried out, so he took a drink from the flask.

Poverty is uncomfortable, as I can testify; but nine times out of ten the best thing that can happen to a young man is to be tossed overboard and compelled to sink or swim for himself. In all my acquaintances I never knew a man to be drowned who was worth the saving.—[James A. Gamble.]

When Talmage says: "Oh! nonsense!" he is meaning to swear just as much as any man who says "dammit." Fact is, no one means to swear. The idea is to forcibly express thought.

How to Make the Farm Pay.

The Western Agriculturist: It will pay to thoroughly understand farming, and make a business of it. It will pay to take agricultural papers and magazines, and read and digest their contents. It will pay to continually improve your stock, and to improve on your manner of farming. It will pay to systematize your work. It will pay to buy labor-saving machines, and it will pay to take care of them when not in use. It pays to raise those products which will find quick sale at good prices near home. It pays to get a name for selling the best; to keep good stock of all kinds, as poor stock of any kind leaves no profit; to keep down the weeds; to have some articles to sell every time you go to market, and to buy what you really need in the improved seeds. It pays to have more live poultry, cattle, hogs, sheep, bees, fine improved wheat, corn, oats and hay. It pays to make home attractive, give the children all the schooling possible, and it pays to be a good honest, thinking farmer.

OMAHA is the dog-gonest city in America. Three thousand of the beasts roam at will through the streets and howl forth their hideous songs of praise or something, unmolested through the dark and silent watches of the night. The sign, "Beware of the Dog" can be seen upon hundreds of gateways, placed there that he who reads may run. Residents of neighboring cities affirm that they can always tell an Omaha man by the patch on the equator of his breeches, which marks the spot where the lustive purp has reached for dry goods and proud flesh. It is indeed a cursed city.—[Religious Editor Detroit Free Press.]

And now comes President Arthur. His own party fear lest he follow in the footsteps of Grant, and draw about him a spotted Cabinet more intent upon despoiling the Treasury and appropriating public lands than honestly administering Government for the best interests of the country. There is some anticipation that the President will call into his Cabinet one Aaron A. Sargent, who in Congress behaved so badly that his constituents in California burned him in effigy; himself the most notorious railroader and land-grabber ever sent from the Pacific coast to Washington.—[Jamestown Standard.]

A more ill-assorted couple than Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey J. Hoagland, of Providence, could hardly be imagined. He is a white boy, his parents stating his age at 16 and her at 19, while she is a negress of 25, and by no means a prepossessing specimen of her race. They eloped, and were married by a negro preacher. The husband's parents have had him arrested on a charge of vagrancy, in the hope of separating him permanently from his wife, but he declares that he will return to her at the earliest opportunity.
